

"When they ask me for proof of evolution, I just point them to the dinosaur bones, and they seem to think that is good enough."

"We always think better when we go in circles. That's what makes evolutionary theory so intriguing."

"In class today, Professor Twitch said that some paleontologist thinks he may have found the footprint of that first fish which is supposed to have crawled out of water onto the land."

"We've been searching for at least one transitional species for over a hundred years. It must be out there somewhere."
